I'm proud to call Shark Bay home, not just for its stunning natural beauty, but for the warmth and strength of its community. My family and I chose to settle in Denham after visiting for over 20 years, drawn by the vibrant spirit of the people who live here. As a mother of two, I'm deeply invested in making Shark Bay a place where families feel supported, connected, and proud to raise their children.

Professionally, I hold a degree in behavioural science and have worked in disability and mental health advocacy, including roles within the NDIS. I've seen firsthand the importance of inclusive services and strong community support, and I'm passionate about ensuring all residents feel heard and valued. My current work in sustainable conservation reflects my commitment to protecting the unique environment that makes Shark Bay so special.

Locally, I've worked at the Silverchain nursing post, volunteered for interschool carnivals, marine rescue and meals on wheels, and continue to serve on the Shark Bay School Council. I love getting involved wherever I can, whether its supporting local events, lending a hand, or simply listening to what matters most to people.

As a councillor, I would bring a practical, people-first approach, grounded in real experience and a genuine love for this town. I believe in respectful dialogue, community-led decision-making, and building a future that reflects the values and needs of all Shark Bay residents.
